WHITE IS CAUGHT IN WESTERN CITY

Bob White Arrested in Chicago on Information Given Detectives of that City by Local Officers. Chief Emmons Gets Notification.

Bob White is in the toils. A telegram from Chief of Detectives Halpin, of Chicago, to Chief of Police Emmons, of Gettysburg, received this morning, announced the arrest in the Windy City of the smooth young Englishman and told that he would be willing to come back to Gettysburg without extradition papers. One of the local officers will leave to-morrow morning for Chicago to bring back their prey.

The arrest comes as the direct result of the vigorous efforts put forth by local officers to apprehend White. Every city and town of any consequence was apprised of his disappearance and the fact that he was wanted here, together with the reward offered for his capture. The first set of notices announced the reward as $50 and the second lot as $100. The only notice sent to Chicago was the first so that officers there will receive the smaller reward for the arrest.

In addition to the principal cities, all ports at which White might try to leave the country were notified to be on the look-out for him. Places at which he might cross the border into Canada where, it is understood, he has many friends, were sent communications giving a description of the boy and telling of the reward offered. Not a detail was overlooked by Mr. Emmons and County Detective Wilson in the effort to get White and the work has proved effective.

The circumstances of the arrest are not known but the fact that White agreed to come back to Gettysburg without putting the authorities to the inconvenience of getting extradition papers—required to take an accused man from one state to another where demanded—would seem to indicate that he gave himself up without much argument.

White's career in Gettysburg makes the most interesting story that has occurred here for many years. His arrival here penniless after spending a small fortune which he had accumulated in the automobile business after a residence of a few years in this country, his enlisting of the interest and support of local persons, his religious activity at the time of the recent local revival, and his subsequent unceremonious departure compose a unique history which has further interest in the arrest made at Chicago.

White left Gettysburg on April first in a $1050 Marathon car secured from D. B. Lau, of Hanover, in payment of which a note was given with C. S. Reaser, of Gettysburg, as security. White gave Westminster as his destination claiming that he expected to sell the car there. His return or failure to report in a reasonable time aroused suspicion and, on the Sunday following, the matter was placed in the hands of local officers.

Word was received on April 8 that White had sold the car in Philadelphia the previous Friday for $300 and Mr. Reaser went to that city where he secured the machine and brought it home. It had been in rough weather and showed indications of having been through a siege of severe treatment. A notable feature of the return trip home was that Mr. Reaser passed numerous officers and police, to whom a description of the car had been given together with the license number it carried, and yet not one of them made any effort to stop him.

When Mr. Reaser recovered the car it was stated that White would be under arrest in a few days but the promises made by Philadelphia officers failed to materialize. Since then numerous rumors have been afloat concerning White's whereabouts but all lack confirmation and the first definite news of the young Englishman came in the telegram to Chief of Police Emmons which told of his capture.

The charge preferred against White is the larceny of $25 worth of tools from Mr. Reaser which he is alleged to have disposed of. It is said that there is no legal ground on which he can be held in the automobile matter.

MADE PLANS FOR ANNUAL ASSEMBLY

Officers of Lutheran Summer Assembly Met here on Monday and Formulated Plans for this year's Meeting. Innovations Announced.

Plans for this year's Lutheran Summer Assembly were laid at a meeting of the officers in Gettysburg on Monday. The dates for the assembly were fixed for July 30 to August 6, and application will be made for the use of the buildings of the Lutheran Theological Seminary.

It is planned to have this year's gathering partake much more of a social character than those of other years. There will be special sessions for the wives of the clergymen attending the assembly and for all other women who care to take part in the meetings. All will be quartered, it is expected, in the main buildings at the Seminary, while the refectory will be used for all meals.

In former years the assembly has been held here during the week of the Chautauqua but it was found unsatisfactory, as the features of Chautauqua week were distracting and conflicted with the more serious work of the assembly in addition to taking up many of the periods. This year, accordingly, the gathering of the Lutheran ministers will be an entirely separate affair.

The mornings will be devoted to a Bible study hour, lecture period and conference hour. In the afternoon Miss Sallie Protzman, of Baltimore, who was here two years ago, will conduct periods of special missionary work for women and there will also be special study periods in missions for the men. The afternoons, however, will be devoted principally to recreation. In the evenings there will be lectures, most of which will be illustrated.

The persons to have charge of the various conferences in the mornings and to deliver these evening lectures have been selected, but not all have accepted the invitations. Until they do, the program will not be given out for publication.

Those present at Monday's meeting for the planning of this year's assembly were the officers, Rev. S. W. Herman, of Harrisburg, president; Dr. W. A. Granville and Dr. J. A. Singmaster, Gettysburg, vice presidents; Rev. George N. Lauffer, Newville, secretary; Rev. J. H. Meyer, Jersey City, treasurer.

FOUND JEWELRY IN HOTEL RUINS

Persons Search Ruins in Blue Mountain House and Find Various Articles. Evidently the Contents of a Trunk. Many Mountain Visitors.

Some of the visitors to Pen Mar, Sunday, went to the site of the Blue Mountain House, destroyed by fire August 5, last, and scratched among the ruins there for relics. Several men found pieces of jewelry.

Howard Spangler, Waynesboro, dug up a silver locket and chain. On one side of the locket were the initials, "G. L. L.", and on the other side "1913". A photograph inside had been reduced to a little piece of charred paper.

About the same place were found two gold bracelets. One was a band bracelet, figured; it had been burst by the heat. The other was a small round bracelet. Trunk hinges and a lock, nearby, lead to the conclusion that the jewelry was in a trunk.

Reports from the mountain sections of Adams County report numerous visits during the past week of young people who were on a search for arbutus. The pretty flowers are said to be plentiful this year and many are out hunting them. Caledonia and Pen Mar had large crowds of people Sunday and other resorts on the mountain reported similar numbers of visitors.

CONGRESS GIVES WILSON WAR POWER

The Navy to Start Reprisals.

MAY INVADE MEXICO

To Enforce U. S. Demands by Armed Forces.

WAR FUND OF $50,000,000

Plans Made to Seize Tampico and Vera Cruz.

Washington, April 21.—The joint resolution justifying the employment of the armed forces of the United States in enforcing demands against Victoriano Huerta, was passed by the house.

The vote was 337 to 37. The resolution then went to the senate.

The senate reconvened at midnight, and after a warm debate the resolution was passed by an overwhelming majority.

The war resolution acted on by congress follows:

"A joint resolution justifying the employment of the armed forces of the United States in enforcing certain demands against Victoriano Huerta.

"Resolved by the senate and house of representatives in congress assembled, That the president of the United States is justified in the employment of the armed forces of the United States to enforce the demands upon Victoriano Huerta for unequivocal amendments to the government of the United States for affronts and indignities committed against this government by General Huerta and his representatives."

Will Enforce Demands.

This action means that President Wilson will now enforce his warlike stand and seize the seaports of Mexico.

The passage of the measure gives President Wilson full power to use both the land and sea forces to accomplish his plan of reprisal, and it is likely that the first warlike movement will be made at once.

In an atmosphere of suppressed excitement reflecting grave tension and patriotic fervor, the president of the United States asked congress in person for approval of his purpose to use the army and navy to force General Huerta to apologize for indignities offered to the American government.

Speeches in the house and opposition in the senate foreign relations committee showed that the prospect of passing immediately the joint resolution approving the president's course was by no means as bright as it had seemed, and a lengthy debate was the prospect.

While congress deliberated and Majority Leader Underwood urged prompt action so that if American forces were fired on they would be free to act, the executive branch of the government issued orders to the army and navy with systematic regularity. The army was cautioned to be on the alert and active preparations to use the militia as volunteer forces in case of further emergency were begun. The warships of the navy were ordered to concentrate on Tampico and Vera Cruz as their first objective. Plans were made to seize these ports. American merchant vessels were ordered out of Mexican harbors, and there was a long session of the joint board of the army and navy, participated in by Admiral Dewey, Major General Wood and Major General Winterspoon, after which it was announced that the army was prepared for instant action.

To Force Reparation From Huerta.

The president conferred at the White House with the secretaries of state, war and navy about the successive steps to be taken to force reparation from Huerta. Major General Wood, chief of staff of the army; Rear Admiral Victor Blue, chief of the navy bureau of navigation; Rear Admiral Fiske, chief of the bureau of operations, and John Lind, the president's personal representative in Mexico, were called into the conference.

Americans are being earnestly requested and urged to withdraw from Mexico; merchant ships are being chartered to take them away, and while the president himself deprecates the "war spirit" with which the national capital is surcharged, high government officials do not deny that the most elaborate precautions are being taken for any eventuality.

The president, in a statement to the Washington correspondents, said he had no enthusiasm for war, but that he hoped to avert it, but that he was taking forceful steps now to stop those indignities which might lead to armed conflict. He drew a distinction between the Huerta faction and the great body of Mexican people who had refused to recognize General Huerta as their president.

The president in deprecating the war spirit that has arisen, said, "that in no conceivable circumstances would we fight the people of Mexico."

Measures "short of war" are planned by the president, such as the seizure of customs houses, the occupation of coast towns, the taking of the Mexican warships and a blockade of Mexico's commerce with the United States.

While awaiting the action by the house on the "war resolution" the senate was not idle and took measures to aid President Wilson in his stand against Huerta.

Chamberlain's War Fund Bill.

A bill to appropriate $50,000,000 to be expended by the president was introduced by Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the military affairs committee, to which the bill was referred. The Chamberlain bill provides: "That the president of the United States be, and he is hereby authorized to expend in his discretion for the national defense and for each and every purpose connected therewith the sum of $50,000,000 out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, which sum shall remain available until expended."

This is identical to the bill passed before the war with Spain.

The volunteer army bill providing a comprehensive scheme of mobilization of the volunteer forces of the United States in time of war was taken up and passed by the senate. The measure was adopted some time ago by the house. It is designed to carry into effect a scheme of greater efficiency in the use of the national guard and other volunteer troops.

The measure also provides for converting these forces into the regular army in time of war.

U. S. REGULARS ARE READY

5000 Rushed to Alveston to Embark For Mexico on Short Notice.

Houston, Tex., April 21.—Mobilization of troops on the Gulf coast and the Mexican border has begun.

It is planned to have several thousand men in readiness in case a troop movement is ordered. Already 5000 men, comprising the Fifth Brigade of the Second Army Division, are at Galveston, ready to sail for Vera Cruz at any hour.

The balance of the Second Division, on a practice march, began a hurried movement on foot back to Texas City and Galveston, on orders received from Washington, after the Fifth Brigade had been rushed aboard troop trains. The Second Division consists of almost 10,000 men.

Brigadier General Hugh L. Scott is in command of the forces in Texas.

Provisions and medical supplies for 10,000 men for thirty days are being packed on board the four army transports Kilpatrick, Meade, McClellan and Sumner, now at Galveston. No sailing orders have yet been received. With the provisions on board, it remains only for the troops to be loaded for the vessels to be ready to put to sea.

REBELS TO ATTACK TAMPICO

Seek to Gain Port Before It Can Be Seized by United States.

Juarez, Mex., April 21.—Orders for an immediate renewal of the rebel attack on Tampico, with the purpose of capturing the town at the earliest possible moment have been issued.

The despatch of speed said to have been emphasized in the order has given rise to rumors that when the American warships start to enforce President Wilson's orders they will find, not Federalists, but friendly rebels in possession.

ASKS FOR POWER TO CRUSH HUERTA

President Goes to Congress in Mexican Crisis.

RECITES SERIES OF INSULTS

Mr. Wilson Makes It Clear He Wants Only to Restore Happiness to People of Troubled Mexico.

Washington, April 21.—President Wilson asked congress to authorize him to use the force of the army and navy to compel President Huerta, of Mexico, to salute the American flag in reparation for the arrest of bluejackets at Tampico and for other insults.

The request was made in an address before a joint session of the house and senate. He made it plain he hoped no war would result. He declared the American people did not seek war with the Mexican nation, but that the only idea he had in using force was against Huerta, who, he declared, did not represent the Mexican people. Wilson's address follows:

Gentlemen of the Congress—It is my duty to call your attention to a situation which has arisen in our dealings with General Victoriano Huerta at Mexico City, which calls for action, and to ask your advice and cooperation in acting upon it.

On the night of April a paymaster of the United States steamship flotilla landed at the turbide bridge landing at Tampico with a whaleboat and boat's crew to take off certain supplies needed by his command and while engaged in loading the boat was arrested by an officer and squad of men of the army of General Huerta.

Neither the paymaster nor anyone of the boat's crew was armed, and two of the men were in the boat when the arrest took place and were obliged to leave it and submit to be taken into custody, notwithstanding the fact that the boat carried, both at her bow and stern, the flag of the United States.

The officer who made the arrest was proceeding up one of the streets of the town with six prisoners when met by an officer of higher authority, who ordered him to return to the landing and await orders; and within an hour and a half from the time of the arrest the prisoners were received from the commander of the Huertista forces at Tampico for the release of the paymaster and his men. The release was followed by apologies from the commander and later by an expression of regret by General Huerta himself.

General Huerta urged that martial law be obtained at the port at Tampico, that orders should be issued that no one should be allowed to land at the turbide bridge, and that our sailors had no right to land there. Our naval commander at the port had not been notified of any such prohibition, and even if they had been, the only justifiable course open to the local authorities would have been to request the paymaster and his crew to withdraw and to lodge a protest with the commanding officer of the fleet.

Admiral Mayo regarded the arrest as a serious affront to the United States flag, and he was not satisfied with the apologies offered, but demanded that the flag of the United States be saluted with special ceremony by the military commander of the port.

The incident cannot be regarded as a trivial one, especially as two of the men arrested were taken from the boat as they were about to leave the territory of the United States; but had it stood by itself it might have been attributed to the ignorance or arrogance of a single officer.

Unfortunately it was not an isolated case. A series of incidents have recently occurred which cannot but create the impression that the representatives of General Huerta were willing to go out of their way to show disregard for the dignity and rights of this government and felt perfectly safe in doing what they pleased, making free to show in many ways their irritation and contempt.

A few days after the incident at Tampico an order from the United States steamship Minnesota was arrested at Vera Cruz while ashore in uniform to obtain the ship's mail and was for a time thrown into jail.

An official dispatch from this government to its embassy at Mexico was withheld by the authorities of the telegraphic service until peremptorily demanded by our charge d'affaires in person.

So far as I can learn, such wrongs and annoyances have been suffered to occur only against representatives of the United States. I have heard of no complaints from other governments of similar treatment.

It was necessary that the apologies of General Huerta and his representatives should go much further, that he should be made to attract the attention of the whole population to their significance, and such as to impress upon General Huerta himself the necessity of acting to it that no further occasion for explanation and professed regrets should arise. I, therefore, felt it my duty to sustain Admiral Mayo in the whole of his demand and to insist that the flag of the United States should be saluted in such a way as to indicate a new spirit and attitude on the part of the Huertistas.

Such a salute General Huerta has refused, and I have come to ask your approval and support in the course I now purpose to pursue. If armed conflict should unhappily come as a result of a hostile personal resentment toward this government, we should be fighting only General Huerta and those who adhere to him and give him their support, and our object would be only to restore to the people of the distracted republic the opportunity to set up again their own laws and their own government.

We would not wish to exercise the good offices of friendship without their welcome and consent. The people of Mexico are entitled to settle their own domestic affairs in their own way, and we sincerely desire to respect their right.

I, therefore, come to ask your approval that I should use the armed forces of the United States in such a way and to such an extent as may be necessary to obtain from General Huerta and his adherents the fullest recognition of the rights and dignity of the United States, even at the distressing conditions now unhappily obtaining in Mexico.

There can in what we do be no thought of aggression or of selfish ambition. We seek to maintain the dignity and authority of the United States only because we wish a way to keep our great influence unimpaired for the use of liberty here in the United States and wherever else it may be employed for the benefit of mankind.

STATES CAN FIX FIRE RATES

U. S. Supreme Court Upholds Kansas Law.

THREE JUSTICES DISSENT

Decision Is Regarded as an Opening Wedge to Allow States to Fix Price of Commodities and Labor.

Washington, April 21.—The supreme court handed down a decision which three of the court's members, including the chief justice, characterized as the opening wedge to the assertion of the right to fix by legislative action the price of all commodities, including labor.

Lawyers who heard the opinion regarded it as one of the most important and far-reaching in its possible consequences to business that has been handed down since the court's epoch making differences in the anti-trust cases.

The decision, it was pointed out, is bound to add strength to the agitation in favor of legislation fixing a minimum wage and also legislation in favor of giving price fixing powers to government commissions.

The decision by Justice McKenna upheld the validity of a statute of the state of Kansas regulating the rates of fire insurance.

Justice McKenna in the majority opinion declared that the test to be applied in reaching a conclusion as to the constitutionality of the Kansas statute was:

"Is the business so far affected with a public interest as to justify legislative regulation of its rates? And we mean a broad and definite public interest."

The justice reviewed the acts of many state legislatures regulating insurance and said:

"The state has stepped in and imposed conditions upon the companies restraining the absolute liberty which strictly private companies are permitted to exercise."

These are based on the interest, the justice declared, which the public has in the solvency of these companies which would greatly affect the wealth of the country.

The majority of the court upheld the Kansas law solely upon the peculiar character of the insurance business which made it so closely related to the public welfare.

The title of the case was that of the German Alliance Insurance Company vs. the Lewis, superintendent of insurance of the state of Kansas. Under the power of the Kansas statute the superintendent reduced the rate for fire insurance about 12 per cent. The law authorized the raising or lowering of rates so long as they continued reasonable.

ALL U. S. CONSULS WARNED

Told to Tell All American Citizens to Leave Mexico.

Mexico City, April 21.—All American consuls in Mexico were notified by Charge d'Affaires O'Shaughnessy to call to the attention of American citizens now resident in the republic the warning issued from Washington several months ago that they should leave the country.

The charge took this action by order of the United States state department. As a result of the reiteration of the warning it is expected that there will be an immediate rush of Americans from Mexico City and other interior points to the east. Some will remain, choosing to risk their lives rather than abandon the fortunes that they have invested.

Through the Mexico City newspapers a warning is given by the foreign minister, acting for President Huerta to the people to refrain from any demonstration or overt acts against the Americans resident in Mexico. Attention is called to the possibility that the controversy between Mexico and the United States may yet be adjusted amicably.

Asks For Reward For Husband.

Clearfield, Pa., April 21.—Judge Sigmund Bell, of the county court, was called upon to decide whether the reward offered for the capture of John O. Keeler, since hanged for murder should be paid to his wife, Mrs. Keeler, who claimed the reward on the ground that she induced her husband to give him self up.

Astor May Wed April 30.

New York, April 21.—The wedding of Vincent Astor and Helen Dinwiddie Huntington will, in all probability take place on April 30, the date originally set. This was the substance of a statement given out by Mrs. Robert P. Huntington. The wedding will be much simpler than was originally intended.

Swindler, 71, Sent to Jail.

Euston, Pa., April 21.—Convicted of swindling farmers to whom he sold lightning rods, Walter Hills, a feeble old man of seventy years, was sentenced by Judge Stewart to serve six months in the county jail.

IN MEMORIAM

Margaret Sillik was born June 17, 1826, died April 16, 1914, aged 87 years, 9 months and 29 days.

We miss her in her mortal place.

As time goes slowly by;

In vain we look for that dear face,

And wish that she was nigh.

Her gentle hands are folded now,

No lines of suffering on her brow,

No words those cold lips part.

Dear friends, grieve not for me

While I am in eternity.

But be content and trust in God,

And you shall receive a great reward.

A friend, so dear, has left us,

A loss we can never regain.

Oh, Jesus the Lover of children,

Take care of us since she is gone.

Oh, how sweet when we meet on the beautiful shore,

So free from all sorrow and pain,

With songs on our lips and with harps in our hands.

To meet our aged friend again.

WAR CERTAIN, SAYS ENGLISH EDITORS

Declare U. S. is Facing Huge Task in Mexico.

London, April 21.—Mexico overshadowed all other matters in public interest here. Throughout the British Isles local and imperial politics had to give way to what has been considered here for a long time as the inevitable intervention by the United States to restore order in Mexico.

The Westminster Gazette, a leading government organ, in expressing the view that nothing can now avert war, says:

"One cannot pretend to be surprised that this should be the end of the refusal of the United States to recognize General Huerta. Other nations, in other circumstances, might have tackled the hornet's nest, but this case is one in which the Monroe Doctrine saddles the United States with heavy obligations, from which there is no escape." The Pall Mall Gazette, an opposition newspaper, says:

"Our sympathy with the Americans does not blind us to the perils of the course to which they seem about to commit themselves."

Censures Wilson For His Delay.

Berlin, April 21.—The German press is sparring in comment on the Mexican situation. The Cologne Gazette, reflecting the attitude of the German government, says:

"The German people have no cause to oppose the course of the United States with an unfriendly policy, which besides having no object, would only injure Germany's relations with the United States. Recent developments in Mexico can only be regretted as far as they affect German interests. If the Americans now succeed in establishing order and peace there can be no objection from the German standpoint."

Militiamen and Three Strikers Killed.

Denver, Colo., April 21.—Reports to Adjutant General John Chase are that a sharp battle was in progress in the hills between Berwind and Hastings, in the Colorado strike district, and that one militiaman and three strikers had been killed. One report was that Lieutenant Lindelfer, with seventeen men, had been cut off by strikers because their machine gun failed to work.

Would Bar Subsidized Ships.

Washington, April 21.—Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire, Republican floor leader, introduced in the senate a resolution denying the use of the Panama canal in the event of the repeal of the free tolls clause of the canal act to all foreign vessels receiving a subsidy applicable to canal tolls.

21,538 MEN FROM PA. IN EVENT OF WAR

U. S. May Call For 250,000 Volunteers.

Philadelphia, April 21.—Should war be declared against Mexico and an invasion of that country be decided upon, Pennsylvania will be asked to supply 21,538 volunteers as her share of an army 250,000 strong that will be raised in the forty-eight states to be thrown across the Mexican border.

These men would enlist as individuals and not as members of the regiments to which they belong. The share of Delaware will be 400 men; Maryland, 3884; New Jersey, 594; Virginia, 2770, and West Virginia, 2770.

That Pennsylvania would have no trouble whatever in mustering in the 21,500 men allotted as its quota in the tentative plans for calling for 250,000 volunteers is the confident assertion of national guard officers in Philadelphia.

The total strength of the National Guard of Pennsylvania at present is close to 10,000. It is organized on the same skeleton plan as the United States army, and its war strength would be almost consonant with the Pennsylvania quota if the call is issued, 21,000.

25,000 Soldiers Ready in New York.

Albany, N. Y., April 21.—Governor Glynn inquired as to the availability of the state national guard for war service, and was informed by the adjutant general that in ten hours a force of 25,000 men would be ready for active duty, such an army representing 10 per cent of the available men.

Recruiting Indiana Guard.

Indianapolis, April 21.—Quiet yet rapid preparations were started looking to the recruiting of the Indiana National Guard to its full war strength for field service in case of war with Mexico. It was believed that the full strength of 4500 men could be attained within a week or ten days.

GOETHALS ALERT AT CANAL

Will Have Waterway Ready For Fleet in Case of Urgent Necessity.

Panama, April 21.—Only in case of urgent necessity may battle ships use the Panama canal in proceeding to the blockade of the Mexican-Pacific ports. This was made plain by Governor Goethals. He declared that if the United States government insisted he could speed up the work on the Cuzco racha slide in order to obtain a forty-five-foot channel. He could, he said, also demolish the Empire bridge over the canal and tear out the railway trestle at Paraiso.

It is understood that the secretary of the navy has requested information relative to the passage of war ships.

Big League Stories

By CHARLES E. VAN LOAN

VI.—M'CLUSKEY'S PRODIGAL

From "The Ten Thousand Dollar Arm and Other Tales of the Big League"

Copyright, 1912, by Small, Maynard & Company

"I've got it," he said. "You know the way he reads them city papers and all the sporting pieces? I'll bet he wants to be a ball player. That's what ails him. He better stay where he's well off."

The middle of August came, and still the hired man persisted in his strange target practice. He was lean and brown and hard, and his eyes were clear. Not a trace of his old nervousness remained.

Toward the end of August he looked up from the table one evening.

"Mrs. Hoskins," said he, "I'm afraid you're going to lose your star boarder."

"I knew it," said "mother" calmly. "You been itchin' to get away for days."

Obadiah argued and preached a sermon from the text of the rolling stone. The two men talked long and earnestly on the front porch. In the end it was settled that Brown was to leave on Saturday. He had refused an offer of $40 a month and his board.

"I feel like I was losin' one of the family," said Mrs. Hoskins, wiping her eyes on the edge of her apron.

The hired man had come into the kitchen to say goodby. He was dressed in the brown suit in which he had made his appearance; he had shined his shoes and tied his new cravat with a smart twist which gave him a very effusive air.

"Goodby, mother," said Henry W. Brown. "You've been very good to me, and I'm never going to forget you. Goodby, Mr. Hoskins. If I ever want another job I'll come to you."

Then he shook hands quickly and walked out of the house.

After he had gone Mrs. Hoskins found a package upon the table in the kitchen with her name written upon the wrapping paper. It contained half a dozen silver knives and forks of a pattern to match her best spoons. Her eyes overflowed again as she looked at them.

"Bless his heart!" she said. "Spendin' all that money on foolishness for an old woman! And didn't give me a chance to thank him!"

Meanwhile the late Henry W. Brown tramped down the road, swinging his suit case at his side. His head was in the air, his shoulders were thrown back, and the light of freedom was in his eyes. It had been a fight to a finish, and he had won.

September is the month when the close peasant races tighten up to a certainty and the baseball writers begin to talk about the home stretch. It is also the month when the writers who have been desperately supporting third and fourth place teams begin to write about "next season" and the strengthening of the pitching staff.

The Nonpareils finished August in third place, with a bare fighting chance depending upon the remaining games to be played with teams which were leading them. Undoubtedly Keene's loss had cost them a better position in the race.

The Nonpareils, playing at home, were to open September with a series against the leaders, that tough aggregation of fighters known as the Gamecocks.

Everything depended upon the showing of the Nonpareils in the four games with their rivals. By winning the entire series they would be within two games of the top, with an excellent chance to win out in the remaining month of play.

Three games would help amazingly, but it was gloomily pointed out that during the season which was closing the Gamecocks had beaten the Nonpareils as they had never beaten them before.

Here again cropped up the specter of the missing pitcher, for the baseball fans, with pencil and paper, were able to demonstrate to a mathematical certainty that this strange reversal was due entirely to Keene's absence from the pitching staff. The Gamecocks had always been easy plucking for Keene.

The opening day of the important series rolled around and the Nonpareils went to their dressing rooms in the clubhouse with the weight of responsibility heavy upon them.

Fargo's arm was sore, for he had borne the brunt of the season's work, and it was beginning to tell on him. Delaney had been having a "bad inning" in his recent games. Powers was steady, but at best no better than an average pitcher, requiring hitting behind him in order to win a fair percentage of his games.

The new pitchers had not turned out as well as had been expected—if new pitchers ever do as well as they are expected to do—and Kellher was the only one who was really available.

McCluskey, an optimist on the surface, felt in his heart that he was "up against it good," but that did not keep him from trying to instill some ginger into his charges before he sent them out on the field.

"It's all right to talk, Mike," said Fargo sourly, "but it's a shame to ask me to get out there and open this series with my arm as sore as a boil."

There was an immediate chorus from the other pitchers. Evidently they were not anxious for the ding at the season the main carrier left a package for Mrs. Hoskins. She examined the postmark carefully, untied the string and took out the photograph of a young man in the uniform of a ball player.

"Well, I declare!" said she. "Father, come here! He got a baseball job, after all!"

"Um-m-m!" said Obadiah. "He'd be better off here. Them sporting characters never save any money. He'll be back some day, looking for his old job."

Fertile Rhine Valley.

The climate of the Rhine valley is warmer than in most other parts of Germany, and is consequently more favorable than other regions for the cultivation of tobacco, grapes and corn. The humidity of the valley is excessive, sunshine is quite limited, and the annual precipitation ranges from 24 to 32 inches.

Bread From Sawdust.

In Germany there is said to be a bakery that turns out 20,000 loaves of sawdust bread daily and finds a ready market for the output. Although this "wooden bread" is intended for consumption by horses only, it is claimed by the manufacturers that in case of famine it would furnish a nutritious and highly satisfactory food for human beings.

Two Kinds of Economy.

A woman can take a dime to the liver counter of the butcher's shop and strike a better bargain than a man could make, but a man can wear a two dollar hat till it turns green, while a woman can wear a $25 one only till her friends know it by sight. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

An Unknown
Friend

By JOHN N. LARNED

I was pretty well fixed when I was married, and the future looked inviting. But I had a falling—at least my wife called it a falling—I couldn't stand to see any one suffer. I indorsed a note for a friend to save him from bankruptcy and loaned others money, not counting on the fact that I would need what I put out, and if I didn't have it I would come to grief myself. And so I did.

One day I received a letter from a manufacturer of automobiles that he wished for an agent in my city. My pay would be a salary of $1,500 a year and a commission on every machine I sold. Who the man was or why he wished me for his agent I didn't know and didn't stop to inquire. I accepted the position at once.

Rathbone was the name of the head of the automobile company. Soon after being settled in the business I wrote him, asking how he came to choose me as an agent, but received no reply. The letter that came from the factory was dictated by the superintendent of the sales department, and I was not sure that Mr. Rathbone had ever seen my letter, or if he had, whether he had found time to reply to my question. I sold a good many of his autos and was making money when another windfall came to me that surprised me more than the first.

Mr. Rathbone's auto works were incorporated, and one morning I received a registered letter which, on opening, I found to contain a certificate for a thousand shares of the new company made out in my name. I was never in my life so dumfounded. Then it occurred to me that as an employee of the concern I was expected to subscribe for the stock. Though I had laid up some funds, I had not enough to pay for the stock. While I was wondering what it all meant one of my employees called my attention to a newspaper item mentioning the organization of the manufacturing company for which I was agent at shares of $20 each. The par value of my stock was $20,000, and the item further stated that there had been sales of 120.

I wrote at once to ask if the stock had been sent me as subscribed stock and on what terms I would be expected to pay for it. A formal reply from the treasurer of the company came to me that the thousand shares stood in my name on the company's books full paid.

When I told my wife about the matter she said that the stock had been placed in my name to serve some purpose connected with the organization of the company and I would find out in time that I didn't own it. I wrote several letters to the main office about it, but they were not answered. My wife was fearful that if any financial breakdown occurred to the company we would be in as bad a fix as before I was offered the agency. I resolved to let the matter drop and await developments.

When the first quarterly dividends were declared I received a check for $1,000. I looked at it in amazement, then, showing it to my wife, remarked that if this was ruin I wished I might keep on being ruined in the same way as long as I lived. At this rate my stock was paying me $1,000 a year. It didn't seem worth while to write for an explanation, for no such letters had been accorded an answer. My wife still feared that I was being used as a dummy to put through some financial scheme, but dummies don't usually receive checks for hard money. They are not the basket of the balloon, but the gas bag. I didn't put any faith in this interpretation. Since I could get no information I determined to leave my business in charge of my demonstrator, go to the office of the company and find out for myself what was at the bottom of my good fortune.

I carried out my resolution and one day walked into the office of the manufacturer. I was obliged to send in my card to the president and received a reply to call at his home that evening. When I presented myself there, after being admitted, an elderly woman came in to receive me and said:

"My husband has asked me to say that he is under a great obligation to you, which he is endeavoring to repay. But it is in your power to do him a great injury. He suggests that you return to your home and accept the benefits he has bestowed upon you and those he intends to bestow, asking no questions."

"And he will not see me?"
"He prefers not."
"May I ask why?"
"Because you may recognize him."

"And if I do?"

"I can answer no more questions. I will say this, however—I consider my husband overtimid about the matter."

"I cannot conceive why I should injure one who has so befriended me."

She remained silent, and I withdrew. I returned to my home and within a week received a certificate for another thousand shares of stock.

One night while lying awake memory brought me a possible explanation. When a youngster, some fifteen years before, while hunting I started from the bushes a man wearing stripes. He begged me not to betray him. Instead of doing so I secured ordinary clothes for him, which he put on and went his way. I never heard from him. I do not doubt that this man became successful and was my benefactor. After thinking the matter over I decided to respect his wishes and never again tried to see him.

Dealing With an Affront.

The dull world has got the wrong phrase; it is he who regets an affront who pockets it; he who takes no notice lets it lie in the dirt.—George MacDonald.
